Teaching Summary: Isaiah 52:13-53:12, part 6

Isaiah 52:13-53:12

Overview

Isaiah 52:13 – 53:12 is a Hebrew poem. It is the fourth and final Servant song of Isaiah. It has five stanzas, with three verses in each stanza. See Fifteen in Bullinger. The stanzas serve as our outline:

Stanza	Subject
Isaiah 52:13-15	The Servant will be exalted after He suffers.
Isaiah 53:1-3	The Servant was despised and misunderstood.
Isaiah 53:4-6	He suffered and died for us.
Isaiah 53:7-9	He willingly suffered mistreatment at the hands of godless men, ending in His death.
Isaiah 53:10-12	All this according to the will of God His Father, who put Him to grief and will exalt Him.

Since Israel has sinned so terribly so as to deserve a blackened sky and parched land, and God is Holy, how can He promise Israel forgiveness, salvation, and a profoundly great inheritance?

How could God not destroy such wicked people?

Isaiah 52:13-53:15 answers these questions. It proclaims amazing, unexpected good news. Forgiveness of sins is accomplished through the suffering and death of the Servant.

The redemption of the world falls on the shoulders of ONE MAN, and Him crucified.

He is the one mediator between God and man. 1Timothy 2:5-6. The New Testament reveals His name: Jesus Christ.

Job was given a vision of this Person and rejoiced. But first look at Job 9:25-35 where he describes his predicament.

Ok, now look at Job 19:21-27!

We were in the same predicament as the nation of Israel. Paul cried out, “Who will rescue me from the body of this death”? Thanks be to God through Jesus Christ our Lord! Let’s read Romans 7:21-8:1.

A dilemma

“Hey dad – I got in very big trouble today”.

“What happened, son?”

“Well, the teacher asked Victor what the subject of ‘Billy went fishing’ is. He said, ‘Billy’. And she said, ‘that’s correct’. Then she asked me, ‘If I said, I’m beautiful’, what tense is that?’

And I said, ‘well teacher, I’m no genius, but I think that’s past!’”

This boy had a problem with verb tenses! When we read Isaiah 53 in English, we face a similar dilemma:

If Isaiah was prophesying about future events (and he was), why are nearly all of the (English) verbs in verses 2-10 in the past tense?

Verse 2: He grew up. Verse 3: He was despised and forsaken. Verse 4: our griefs He bore.

Verse 5: He was pierced through for our transgressions. He was oppressed (verse 7); He was taken away (verse 8); His was with a rich man in His death (verse 9).

A future event is spoken of as having occurred in the past. What’s going on?

This: the Hebrew language is quite different from the English language when it comes to verbs.

The English has 12 verb forms. There are 3 basic tenses: past, present, and future. Then there are 4 kinds of action: simple, progressive, perfect, and perfect progressive.

Biblical Hebrew had only two verb forms: perfect and imperfect. There was no built-in time element.

In order to translate Biblical Hebrew into English, the translators need to supply the absent time element. They have rules they follow.

But translators are not as a rule theologians, so what seems right to them grammatically may not be what the Hebrew writer - and God – intended.

Isaiah didn't write in the past tense. The Hebrew verbs in Isaiah 53:2-10 are in the perfect verb form. Under the inspiration of the Lord, Isaiah saw the actions as whole and complete – without respect to time.

The perfect verb form is used to express an action that, from the point of view of the speaker, is completed. The perfect aspect refers to completed action, whether in the past, the present, or the future.

Sometimes the translators do use the future English tense to translate perfect aspect Hebrew verbs. See for example the verbs “will be higher” and “they shall see” in Isaiah 53:13 and 15.

Prophecy is often represented in the perfect form or aspect. It's direct revelation from God, who is outside of time. The actions are viewed, not in relation to time, but in relation to the certainty of those actions.

God sees the end from the beginning. He is not bound by time. What He reveals is certain to occur. In His eyes, this prophecy is so certain that it could be spoken of as if it already had occurred.

There is a great New Testament example of this in the book of Romans. We finish with Romans 8:28-30.

The fulfillment of the 4th Servant Song

The New Testament records the fulfillment of Isaiah 52:13-53:12. It does so in three striking and convincing ways.

First, there are a significant number of New Testament references to passages in the 4th Servant Song. Several are direct quotations. All are about Jesus Christ. This shows that the Servant in Isaiah 52:13-53:12 is Jesus Christ.

Second, the narrative of the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ in the gospels matches the narrative of the Servant in Isaiah 53.

Third, the theological explanation for the death of the Servant in Isaiah 53 and what it accomplished is found in the teachings in the New Testament epistles. They instruct us about the blood of Christ: His death on the cross, and what He accomplished by His death, both for God and for the human race (especially believers).

The New Testament introduces us to Jesus Christ, and shows - convincingly - that He is indeed the promised Servant of the LORD who dies for our sins.

First:

We will now examine passages in the New Testament that quote, fulfill, and/or refer to passages in the 4th Servant Song.

Here are the key ones:

Servant in Isaiah	Jesus Christ in the New Testament	feature
Isaiah 52:14	Matthew 27:27-30	His appearance was marred
Isaiah 52:15	Romans 15:21	Direct quotation: They who had no news of Him will see.
Isaiah 53:1	John 12:36-38; Romans 10:16	Direct quotation: Who has believed our report?
Isaiah 53:3	Mark 10:32-34; John 1:10-11	Despised & forsaken; we did not esteem Him.
Isaiah 53:4	Matthew 8:17	Direct quotation: He healed our diseases.
Isaiah 53:5	1Pe 2:24-25; Rom 4:25a; 1Co 15:3; 2Co 5:21	By His stripes you were healed; our transgressions
Isaiah 53:7	Mat 27:12-14; Luk 23:6-9; Joh 1:29; 1Pe 2:23; Rev 5:6,12	He did not open His mouth; Lamb led to slaughter
Isaiah 53:7-8	Acts 8:32-35	Direct quotation
Isaiah 53:9	1 Peter 2:22	Quotation: Committed no sin; no deceit
Isaiah 53:9	Luke 23:32-33, 50-53; Matt 27:57-60	Fulfillment (grave with wicked...rich man in death)
Isaiah 53:10	John 1:29	Guilt offering/lamb of God
Isaiah 53:11	Romans 4:25b; 5:18-19	Justify many
Isaiah 53:12	Mark 15:27-28	Numbered with the transgressors
Isaiah 53:12	Luke 22:35-38	Quoted by Jesus about Himself
Isaiah 53:12	Heb 7:27; 9:26,28; 10:10-14	Poured Himself out to death
Isaiah 53:12	Luke 23:34	He interceded for the transgressors
